1	What is "temporary" space? The real issue is space of the church's own to get Wildflower out of being a church in a box, isn't it - i.e., dedicated space for church use only whether it is rental or outright ownership	Jul 2, 2010 10:03 PM
2	Need to clarify vision/mission in relationship to physical space.	Jul 5, 2010 3:54 PM
3	I feel that, above all, we must be prudent in the way we spend our money. We need to look toward growth, as we do not want to have to move again in less than 10 years.	Jul 5, 2010 4:03 PM
4	I don't think we can afford a facility that will provide permanent space for 20 years or more.	Jul 5, 2010 6:14 PM
5	If we should be so lucky to find a permanent space for the next 20 years, that would be great, but I don't want us to hold out for that.	Jul 6, 2010 6:09 PM
6	We need a space that is our "own", rather it's temporary or permanent.	Jul 6, 2010 8:04 PM
7	permanent space would be wonderful, but what makes financial sense?	Jul 6, 2010 8:30 PM
8	I think we have been at SASAC for at least 7 years. It seems we would be in a building we purchase for a longer time.	Jul 6, 2010 9:40 PM
9	Again, I believe both are acceptable.	Jul 7, 2010 11:34 AM
10	It would be great to find a space to lease, with the option to purchase it if we love it, or move on if it no longer suits our needs.	Jul 7, 2010 5:43 PM
11	should include room to grow, however.	Jul 8, 2010 9:04 PM
12	Having our own as soon as possible seems prudent even if it is a rental/lease/purchase.	Jul 9, 2010 4:14 PM
13	Acreage enough to build/expand our facilities as needs arise and monies permit	Jul 9, 2010 10:40 PM
14	It ould be OK to build our space over 3-5 years. We should not put ourselves into a permanent construction mode, which would distract from our true mission	Jul 10, 2010 1:46 PM
15	I'd like to purchase a reasonable amount of property and then erect a modular building(s) until we can afford more. However, Waldorf School consists of modular buildings that are so attractive they're also permanent buildings. The next time we consider a building, we shouldn't ask people to describe their "dream" building because we end up with irrational expectation. The last time around, "our eyes got much bigger than our stomachs." Instead, we need to ask, "What can we afford right now?" and then build accordingly, even if it's just a sanctuary, two bathrooms, an office, and two classrooms. Lots of churches begin that way. If our message is compelling and we offer meaningful programs, we will grow and be able to add buildings as needed.	Jul 10, 2010 7:45 PM
16	While it is a lot of work to set up SASAC and move occasionally to other locations, it will be a lot of work to own a building and be responsible financially, administratively, and physically for its upkeep and maintenance.	Jul 13, 2010 7:51 PM

17	I like the idea of a transition to our own church tied to reasonable financial commitments.	Jul 16, 2010 3:14 PM
18	None	Jul 20, 2010 9:52 PM
19	Any temporary space should be reused or recycled when it no longer fits.	Aug 3, 2010 6:39 PM
20	Depending on how many above factors are actually an option, room to grow would be wonderful; i.e. big lot if possible.	Aug 4, 2010 5:06 PM
21	It's sad to have SO much time and effort focused on money & buildings. I'd rather stay at SASAC as long as possible, meanwhile continuing our charity efforts & interesting programs. If we move far from here, taking over 30 mins to reach our new locations, I probably will find another church to go to.	Aug 16, 2010 1:14 AM
22	All are acceptable.	Aug 29, 2010 10:19 PM
23	Pre built metal bldg. with rock on exterior seem reasonable.	Aug 29, 2010 10:24 PM
